The Monitor Hotel is announcing a cut in the price of meals. Fifty cents is now the cost.

In response to the numerous enquiries being received, we would like to say that "The Bachelors Baby" will doubtless be rendered again in the near future. Watch for further announcements.

the Womens Auxiliary of Monitor now have no use for.

Work has been commenced on the Tennis courts, getting them prepared for a strenuous season. There is lots to be done and voluntary help will be highly appreciated.

Plenty of Geese and Ducks are being seen around the locality these days. Spring is coming.

Art Johnsons Horse Sale was very successfully conducted. We understand the majority of the animals brought a good price.

Our old friend Mark Twain once remarked "A great deal has been said about the weather, but very little has ever been done" This remark still seems to be applicable, but it about time somebody did do something.

We would ask those who have received the "blue" notices this week to give the matter mentioned therein their earnest and attention. Conditions are such that we cannot continue to publish the News unless the arrears of subscription are paid, and that right early. The amount of subscriptions outstanding at present, while small to the various individuals in the aggregate, amount to quite a sum—sufficient, in fact, to enable us to look with optimism on the future.

Women's Auxiliary Plays Attract Full House

"Splendid" Is Verdict

The Best Amateur Show Ever Rendered in Monitor

The one Act Comedies "The Bachelor's Baby" and "Ici On Parle Francais" presented by the Womens Auxiliary of the St. Laurence Church on April 1st, was generally admitted by all, the best of its kind ever presented in Monitor.

The dramatic efforts in Monitor during the last two years have had to contend with adverse criticism and lack of support.

Several efforts have been made without any success; the male cast usually weakening. The general consensus of opinion was "It can't be did" but the ladies got their heads together and said "It can be done" and it was done—but without the male species.

draws, a delightful setting pleased the eyes of Monitor theatre lovers. The stage had been artistically transformed into a dainty sitting room representing the home of a Bachelor studio.

Our now famous orchestra was elevated—A la Pantages style, in a real orchestra pit decorated in red, white and blue. Several selections were rendered before the curtain rose and it was hard to believe that it was not the Pantages Theatre in some large city.

It is impossible to say which of the cast was the outstanding star. All were stars of the highest order and the parts were so well filled that it would be impossible to offer any criticisms. Even from the back every word could be distinctly heard and every detail noted.

The following were the characters in "The Bachelors Baby." Dick Summers Mrs. L. E. Larder.

Elizabeth Clarkson Mrs. J. Ehlinger.

Miss Smithers Mrs. A. Foster, The Police Officer Mrs. H. A. Warner.

During the intermission between the two plays the orchestra rendered several overtures which received great applause from the audience.

"Ici on Parle Francais" like the "Bachelor's Baby" was one ripple of fun and laughter throughout. The continual laughter from the audience was proof enough that they were receiving one hundred cents on the dollars worth of fun.

The following were the characters in "Ici On Parle Francais."

Major Regulus Rattan Mrs. W. G. MacKenzie.

Victor Dubois Mrs. J. Hamer

Mr. Spriggins Mrs. L. O. Gould

Mrs. Spriggins Mrs. A. Foster

Angeline Mrs. J. Ehlinger

Julia Mrs. Jas. A. Hayes

Anna Maria Mrs. L. E. Larder

While every credit must be given to the ladies for the amount of work done, in practicing and for the natural and efficient way in which they handled their parts, a great deal of credit is due the stage manager, who spent many hours directing the plays and left no detail unfinished.

In spite of almost impossible roads there was a good turnout and the sum of $97.00 was realized. No doubt if the ladies undertake another play they will have a full house.

It is to be regretted that so many did not see the first part of the programme, but we are sure, that at some future date, those who did not have the privilege of enjoying the "Bachelor's Baby" will have recompense.

The two plays were delivered throughout without a hitch, all of the cast were stars, and the writer of this article feels assured that every possible credit is due to those partaking in the plays. It is to be hoped that the activities in this particular line will not cease at this point and on behalf of those who were present—here's hoping that more similar programmes will be arranged by the Womens Auxiliary.

contributed.

A most enjoyable evening's entertainment of innocent mirth was provided on Friday evening last by St. Laurence W. A. The ladies are to be congratulated on their splendid performance. Great credit is due to the stage manager, for the success of the evening.

Thanks are given to the Orchestra and to all who helped and especially to Mr. Moth who kindly lent the Hall.

A large number of people who were present, and some who were not present, have asked the ladies to present "The Bachelor's Baby" and "Ici On Parle Francais" again in the near future.

Finding the Equilibrium

The slow and difficult process of getting the business and productive activities of the country back to a normal level, to which reference was made in this column last week, can, let it be repeated with emphasis, be only successfully accomplished through co-operation on the part of all concerned, and that means everybody. It cannot be accomplished by any one group in the State standing out and insisting on the acceptance of their own demands irrespective of the effect on others. There must be compromises, resulting in readjustments.

For one thing, it becomes increasingly evident that the Federal Government must revise their present systems and methods of levying taxation on business and productive enterprise, whether such business be agricultural production, industrial manufacturing, or commerce in its wholesale and retail departments. Present systems and methods are confusing, complicated and generally unsettling, and constitute a discouragement to enterprise, initiative and increased production. What is now required is something simple, inexpensive in operation, yet withal capable of producing a large revenue to meet the pressing needs of the nation. Such a system is to be found, we believe, in the removal of the present taxation levies on business profits, and the introduction of a general and uniform tax on all business turnovers—that is, a small tax on gross sales in all lines of business activity.

If the Federal Government will take this step then all business will know exactly where it stands and can proceed to work out permanent policies with a view to expansion and increased production, thus reducing and gradually eliminating unemployment, increasing the purchasing power of the country to absorb the larger volume of commodities produced, and at the same time bringing about a reduction in prices which will place such commodities within reach of a much larger number of people.

It should be clear to all people, and especially to Governments, that the secret of national prosperity is to be found in well balanced industry. That is, that the production of every branch of industry in which people are engaged shall be in proportion to the wants and buying power of the people in all their other occupations. In other words, a national balance between occupations in which people are engaged must be found and maintained.

An expert on economics in the United States sets forth the situation quite clearly when he says that the number of people that can be employed in any industry depends upon the amount of the products that can be sold, and that depends upon the price which the consumers have to pay for them. For any commodity there is at any given time a certain price which will secure a larger net result to the producers than any other price. That is to say, if the price be lowered the additional distribution will not compensate for the sacrifice, and on the other hand, if the price be raised the loss of distribution will exceed the gain in price. For example, there is a point where railway freight rates will produce a maximum of revenue, but, increased beyond that figure the rates charged operate to decrease the volume of freight carried so that the higher charges actually mean less revenue.

It must be borne in mind that everything that is offered for sale, whether it be an article of goods or the services of an individual or corporation is in competition, not only with like goods or service, but with all the multitude of attractions that are appealing to every consumer. Under these conditions it is folly on the part of an individual or group of individuals to think that he or they have it in their power to arbitrarily fix wages and prices for themselves. They may have the power to fix, and even maintain, wages, rates and prices, but they cannot escape the effect it will have upon employment or upon sales.

A striking example of the truth of this statement was shown in New York City last fall. The printers there wanted more wages and a board of arbitration awarded it to them, without, apparently, taking into consideration the state of the printing business and its relation to the general business situation. The result was that the wage increase, by increasing the cost of printing at a time when the public had less money to spend for printing, aggravated the situation, resulted in such a substantial decrease in work that hundreds of men were laid off, and the actual amount paid in wages was smaller and not larger than before the increase was made.

That illustrates the whole situation. It is shortsighted to be always thinking that wages are fixed by simply an agreement between employer and employee, and that the employer can either pay it out of his own pocket or pass it on to the consumer. If the consumer cannot pay, the employer will not long be able to do so, and unemployment is the inevitable result. There is a relationship between industry and all the other industries which must be taken into account and maintained.

There is also an equilibrium, a natural balance, which must be maintained between the occupations in which people are engaged. That balance must be sustained in order that the products or services of each group may be absorbed by all the other groups. When the balance is lost, unemployment results and continues until a redistribution is worked out, so that again everybody is at work and all the products are absorbed, either at home or abroad, a state which we call prosperity.

The co-operative efforts of all organizations and individuals must be directed towards finding that equilibrium in occupations, in wages, in production, in order that prosperity may be established: It can only be accomplished by concession and compromise on the part of both Capital and Labor, employer and employee.

Honestly now! Could you get for too, any other prescription which would give the same all-round service and satisfaction that a box of Zam-Buk does?

Zam-Buk is a combination of powerful, healing, herbal extracts, so refined and compounded that wherever there is any kind of soreness of the flesh, or diseased tissue or abnormal condition (such as inflammation, festering or blood-poisoning) it almost immediately soothes and heals. It stops bleeding. It is highly antiseptic—kills disease germs. It is suitable also for the hardened skin of the worker or the under sensitive skin of a child.

Zam-Buk is 100% pure herbal medicine. It contains no animal fat nor mineral impurity. It cannot go rancid. For seventy years we have used Zam-Buk in our homes. Writes E. B. Andersen, of 1407, E. 32nd St., Minneapolis: "We simply could not get along without it. Whenever any of the children, my wife or I, happen an accident, we promptly apply Zam-Buk. It saves many a doctor's bill."

EXTREME MISERY DAY AND NIGHT

Follows a Breakdown of the Nervous System.

Misery day and night is the lot of hosts of men and women who are today the victims of weak nerves. Thin, pale, drawn faces and dejected attitude tell a sad tale for nervous weakness means being tortured by morbid thoughts and unaccountable fits of depression. These sufferers are painfully sensitive and are agitated by some chance remark. Sleeplessness robs them of energy and strength; their eyes are sunken and their limbs tremble; appetite is poor and memory often fails. This nervous exhaustion is one of the most serious evils affecting men and women of today. The only way to bring back sound vigorous health is to treat the nervous system, which is clamoring for better blood.

This new blood can be had through the use of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, which have a direct action on the blood, and through the blood on the nervous system. That a fair trial of this medicine will bring satisfactory results is shown by the experience of Mrs. Marsh, Bass River, N.S., who says: "Following a nervous breakdown, I became practically a nervous wreck. The doctor who was called in said the trouble was inflammation of the nerves. It grew so bad that practically I lost all control of my lower limbs, and had to go about with crutches. Quite aside from my suffering I had a small family and a baby in arms to care for, and I became much discouraged, as I did not appear to be growing better. One evening my husband met an aged doctor on the street and told him of my condition. He asked my husband who was attending me, and when told said: 'I don't want to interfere, but why not try Dr. Williams' Pink Pills?' My husband got me a supply of these pills and after taking a few boxes I was able to go about with the use of one crutch. Continuing the use of the pills I was able to discard the other crutch as well, and was as active as ever I had been. There are many in this neighborhood who know what my condition was when I began the use of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills and who know what this medicine did for me, and I hope my experience may help some other sufferer."

Dr. Williams' Pink Pills are sold by all dealers in medicine, or may be had by mail at 50 cents a box or six boxes for $2.50 from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

The co-operative efforts of all organizations and individuals must be directed towards finding that equilibrium in occupations, in wages, in production, in order that prosperity may be established: It can only be accomplished by concession and compromise on the part of both Capital and Labor, employer and employee.

280,000 Prisoners of War Taken Out of Russia by Entente.

Two hundred and eighty thousand war prisoners of all nationalities have been taken out of Russia or sent back by the various Baltic routes up to the middle of March by reparation agents of the League of Nations, it was announced by the League of Nations News Bureau. Hundreds of thousands of prisoners, it was stated, still remain to be repatriated. The American reparation commission has contributed $865,000 toward the expense of the work furnishing means for restoring 10,587 prisoners.

Autos Hard on Roads

Section of Rubber Tires Said to be Destructive.

Old Roman roads which had stood up under the wheel traffic of 2,000 years were demolished in ten years by the destructive action of rubber tires. The road from Durham to London, more than two hundred miles long, was known as Watling street, ran to the Roman wall along the Cheviot Hills which kept out the invading Picts and Scots. Having a perfect foundation, the road was easily surfaced and maintained through all those centuries. But the motor car made necessary its complete re-construction. It was the same with the more famous Appian Way out of Rome.

A Friend of the Family

Over fifty years ago a young physician practiced widely in Pennsylvania and became famous for his uniform success in the curing of disease. This was Dr. R. V. Pierce, who afterwards established himself in Buffalo, N. Y., and placed one of his prescriptions, which he called "Golden Medical Discovery," in the drug stores in the United States and Canada, so that the public could easily obtain this remarkable tonic, corrective, and blood-maker. Dr. Pierce manufactured this "Discovery" from roots and barks without alcohol—a corrective remedy, the ingredients of which nature had put in the fields and forests, for keeping us healthy. Introduce pure red blood into the system, and health is assured. When you feel run-down, out of sorts, blue and despondent try the energizing influence of this reliable tonic. You can obtain Golden Medical Discovery in tablet or liquid form at all drug stores, or send 10c for a trial package to Dr. Pierce's Laboratory in Buffalo, N. Y.

Several of our leading politiin very drastic terms. Taken as it is now, the farmer expects to sell his produce (excluding grain, of course) to the local

TRY TO WORK THAT STUNT ON A MAIL ORDER HOUSE?

Try it and see. Yet, because the price of certain commodities here is slightly higher than in the m. o. h. you rant and rave about the "profiteering" being indulged in. If it were possible for the local merchants to buy in quantities as large and as often as the m. o. h.
they could sell just as cheaply.

We realize of course, that there are some things that cannot be bought here at any price, on account of the very small demand. In those cases it is perhaps permissible to send away for the article desired.

Gloss stood in the doorway between the two rooms listening to the conversation of the men. Beside her was Daft Dave, his hand in hers. The girl's face was pale and she looked as though she had not been resting well. Her great eyes were fastened on Boy's face, and once he glanced toward her, but looked quickly down again. She passed across the room now, and over to the men. The men were laying their plans of picketing along the trail. Boy looked up and smiled. Dave squatted in his old attitude beside him.

"Boy," said the girl softly, "won't you promise me when I've whispered, 'won't you?' she pleaded, bending over him.

Her breath fanned his cheek and the red blood leaped in his veins. She brushed back his tangled curls with an old-time dress.

"It seems just as though we was little boy and girl again," she whispered, "and you always promised me what I wanted then."

"I can't promise you—," he hesitated. "Glossie," he said tenderly, "won't you please not ask it? I don't want to make a promise I can't keep, and you know what I intend to do."

"And if you do it," she gasped, "oh, Boy, if you do, I can't—," she gasped.

She turned her head away and he saw a shudder run through her frame. He reached out and drew the girl close to him.

"You've got to finish," he said. "What can't we do, Gloss?"

"I don't know," she answered wearily.

She was looking past him and the despair in her eyes cut his soul.

"Girl," he whispered, "I'll promise you not to kill Simpson; 'course I'll promise you. I reckon I understand why you want my promise. I didn't know before, I only suspected and dreaded. If he was a good man, a blessing after the shackles of a long, harsh winter. They all felt its grip it and their steps were springy, their hearts, in spite of apprehension, were glad. Three miles along the trail Boy stationed his first picket.

"You'd better stay here, Jim," he said, "and keep a sharp lookout for Auder. If you hear a high-holder call, you answer it. Then make for Bushwhackers' Place fast as your legs'll carry you."

Two miles further on Declute took up his station and Boy passed on down the trail alone. In the wood it was deep and still and gloriously restful. Squirrels bounded hither and thither and grouse twined their joyous notes. A red fox slipped into the thicket and the kittens rolled in front of him in playful dispute. He had to step over them to keep to the path. Further on a pole-cat, or a pinkie as the animal was called by the Bushwhackers, was grubbing for food in a decayed log. Boy knew at a glance that the little cat had babies she was somewhere close by, and he smiled as he cast a look of inquiry at him from her bright eyes and went unconcernedly on with her work.

Three miles deeper into the wood Boy stepped as he into the undergrowth and seated himself upon a log. All through the forenoon he sat there thinking and dreaming of Gloss and wondering why he had never before thought she cared. He reviewed bit by bit the events of the past four months and strove to pick them together so as to make some thing of the whole. Why had Hal'but instructed his men to steal Gloss? And why was Simpson one of the gang?

here," said Boy. He looked absently about the room and, coming back, put his hands on Paisley's shoulders.

"Bill," he pleaded, "I want 'r go with the scouts."

"No good," he said firmly, "you can't go; that's all."

"I've given my promise," said Boy, "I've given my promise, I won't hurt Simpson, won't that let me go?"

"Nor anybody else?"

"Nor anybody else?"

"Well, I guess that will let you go," chuckled Bill. "I guess it will. Fact is, you're the one ought to go. You're worth all the others put together at scoutin'."

"Where you, Lapsie, came back here. Boy's goin' along in your place. Your wife's kickin' like everything on your goin', so you stay here."

Boy stepped forward and looked into the inner room. On the floor here and there, on furs, lay chubby babies, sleeping sweetly, and on fur shagbushes, close beside them, the mothers of Bushwhackers' Place lay sleeping and dreaming perhaps of olden days in the retreat, before troubles came to cloud its tranquil skies.

He tip-toed across the room and stood beside two sleepers in the shadow. His mother's arm encircled the neck of the girl who had let happiness into his heart. He removed his cap and kneeling kissed the mother's cheek tenderly, then reverently touched the girl's brow with his lips, and slipped away. And through the faint light a pair of wide-open eyes, mellow with God's earthly happiness, followed him. Boy found his waiting companions outside, and slapping Declute's narrow shoulders, he bounded down the path toward the creek.

All the world was waking up to spring. The woody dots anells of the Wild crept into his life and stirred his pulse to the symphony of his world. His whole being responded to the waking time and his kingdom was still his—aye, more than his kingdom was now his. Above his head, a gray streak against the smoky fog, a flock of home-nesting ducks fluttered lazily by. They were flying low and the leader's soft quack sounded to him like a greeting from friends long absent. The creek, washed of its snow, lay still ice-fast, but clear and milk-blue with the tinge of wakefulness upon its face. By night the ice would be broken and the current would be at grinding and joyful, out to the open water of the bay, and by and by into the clear waters of the lake. A lone grouse strummed his joy upon a log hidden in a thicket. Down in the fallow a cock-quack was whistling.

"Bushwhackers! Across the creek the heavy snow of winter has carried the flimsy roof of Hal'but's mill to the bank. It lay where the current would sweep it out into the open water. The schoolhouse, too, seemed to loomed up tottlingly, seeming to bend as though imploring the creek to carry it away from the place from which it was estranged.

"Think the ice strong enough to bear us?" queried Declute. "It's some warm, ain't it?"

"It's strong enough," Boy answered. "We'll drag the canoes across. This ice'll be gone by night."

Quickly the men secured the boats and with two men to a boat they passed across the creek, carefully keeping to the white ice. Once a man broke through, and one of the others, by a quick movement, caught him and pulled him to safety. So, with a laugh and a "now all together," they beached the boats on Totherside and sought the soft-wood where the Triple Elm trail lay.

Along the trail the men moved, speaking little, for each was occupied with his own thoughts. To one and all the opening of spring had come as a blessing after the shackles of a long, harsh winter. They all felt its grip it and their steps were springy, their hearts, in spite of apprehension, were glad. Three miles along the trail Boy stationed his first picket.

"You'd better stay here, Jim," he said, "and keep a sharp lookout for Auder. If you hear a high-holder call, you answer it. Then make for Bushwhackers' Place fast as your legs'll carry you."

Two miles further on Declute took up his station and Boy passed on down the trail alone. In the wood it was deep and still and gloriously restful. Boy knew at a glance that the little cat had babies she was somewhere close by, and he smiled as he cast a look of inquiry at him from her bright eyes and went unconcernedly on with her work.

Three miles deeper into the wood Boy stepped as he into the undergrowth and seated himself upon a log. All through the forenoon he sat there thinking and dreaming of Gloss and wondering why he had never before thought she cared. He reviewed bit by bit the events of the past four months and strove to pick them together so as to make some thing of the whole. Why had Hal'but instructed his men to steal Gloss? And why was Simpson one of the gang?

He thought he knew the answer to that question.

The forenoon passed and two hours of the afternoon had gone before Boy's ears were rewarded with the sound of hoof-beats along the trail. He crept forward and peered down the path. Colonel Hal'but, astride a bright-bay horse, came riding slowly along the trail. His head was low on his breast and he passed so closely to Boy that he might have touched the horse's nose. Boy let him pass, his intention being to drop back into the timber and run ahead of him. Just as Boy was about to creep back into the bush he heard the muffled tread of a man's foot. He waited, his hand fumbling the lock of his rifle. As he peered through the brush he could hardly suppress an exclamation, for Amos Broadbrook, his high form bent and his face haggard and sunk, crept swiftly past him. Five paces on the man sank on one knee and threw his rifle forward. Boy was quick to divine his motive and just as quick to act. His own rifle was leveled and one second before Broadbrook's rifle cracked, d Boy's bullet struck the barrel of the other gun and the would-be murderer's bullet went singing into the bush on the right.

The shock threw Broadbrook upon his face, and before he could regain his feet Boy was upon him. In vain the giant strove to shake off that sneaky form. Boy crouched to him and held him. He heard Hal'but give a cry of surprise and a moment later Amos was pinned down the more effectively by the Colonel's weight. The big man held a pistol at Broadbrook's head and Boy arose and unbuckled one of the stirrup-straps. In another minute Amos was fast bound. Then Colonel Hal'but turned to Boy.

"Seems as though life was very uncertain about here," he remarked. "I understand that animal tried to shoot me, but can't understand why you didn't let him. Suppose you explain."

"He frowned at Boy and put his pistol in his belt.

"I understand you Bushwhackers make a threat to shoot me on sight. Why didn't you let him do it?"

Boy's eyes gleamed dangerously. "It won't do you any good to talk like that," he cried. "I guess if we did shoot you on sight it's about what you deserve. You tried to steal our little Gloss, you and your gang. And you send us word that you intend to drive us into the bay. Well, Colonel Hal'but, you'll find it pretty hard to drive us people anywhere. I saved you from bein' killed just now, but that was only 'cause you wasn't gettin' a chance. Us Bushwhackers are queer. We have a funny way of givin' things a square deal. We don't fire at folks from behind, we don't try to steal women, either."

The Colonel's eyes opened in surprise. "What are you talking about?" he thundered. "Do you mean to say

I haven't been across on your Bushwhackers' Place. I haven't done anything to any of your people, either. I did try to buy your timber, but that's all. My agents have been among you, and a nice way you've used them, I must say. Nearly killed Watson, and stole six hundred dollars of my money from him. Then you up and larn my schooner. That's what I call hospitality with a vengeance."

"You burned your own schooner," cried Boy, "and if Watson and Simpson got rough handlin', it was because they deserved it."

"What had Simpson to do with this affair you speak of?" asked Hal'but. "He was there with you and Watson the night you tried to steal Gloss," said Boy, his mouth twitching.

"Young fellow, you're crazy," growled Hal'but. "I tell you if anybody tried to steal the girl, I don't know anything about it."

"Your agent, Watson, says that you threatened to kill a few of us off," said Boy grimly. "Broadbrook there heard him, didn't you, Amos?" glancing down at the shaggy form on the ground.

Hal'but snorted.

"Humph! and come to think of it, it was Watson heard you say that you would set fire to my schooner," he flashed at Boy. "Boy McTavish, I guess, aren't you?"

"I am Boy McTavish, but I never said that."

Children Cry for Fletcher's

CASTORIA

Fletcher's Castoria is strictly a remedy for Infants and Children. Foods are specially prepared for babies. A baby's medicine is even more essential for Daby. Remedies primarily prepared for grown-ups are not interchangeable. It was the need of a remedy for the common ailments of Infants and Children that brought Castoria before the public after years of research, and no claim has been made for it that its use for over 30 years has not proven.

What is CASTORIA?

Castoria is a harmless substitute for Castor Oil, Paregoric, Drops and Soothing Syrups. It is pleasant. It contains neither Opium, Morphine nor other narcotic substance. Its age is its guarantee. For more than thirty years it has been in constant use for the relief of Constipation, Flatulency, Wind Colic and Diarrhoea; allaying Feverishness arising therefrom, and by regulating the Stomach and Bowels, aids the assimilation of Food; giving healthy and natural sleep. Old Fort Ellis and Sioux Indians

Crossing the Plains to Fort Carlton
Summer 1875.

By O-G-E-MAS-ES (Little Clerk).

(Copyrighted)

I had wintered at Fairfort on the north end of Lake Manitoba and had just closed up the business in the spring, when I received orders to report at Manitoba House and superintend a small sugar making plant which the Hudson's Bay Company had undertaken on an island in the lake just out from the post where there were several thousand ash-maple trees. Our methods were very primitive. An old pony and stone-boat with a barrel to gather the sap, birch bark rogan; and wood troughs for containers, and a string of large-sized open-copper kettles for boiling the sap. An old and wrinkled Indian woman attended to the boiling and sugar making, and when the season ended we had several thousand pounds of sugar, sugar-pitch and syrup. After keeping enough of this for home use, the orders were to send the balance up to Fort Qu'Appelle, and there it would be traded to the Plain Indians who were excessively fond of it, and the price to them was, I think, a skin a pound.

The officer in charge of Manitoba House at that time was the late Isaac Cowie, and he fitted out five Red River carts with ponies, detailed a half-breed named Charlie Anderson (generally known as Charlie-Man) for guide, had the carts loaded up with sugar and syrup, and issued us rations for the trip. Unfortunately a gun was not included in the equipment and at that time I did not own one. He then gave orders for us to proceed direct to Fort Ellis. It was a wilderness we had to traverse, and in fact on the whole trip we never saw or tracked a human being. The ponies we were using had wintered out and as the green grass was only just coming in they were in poor shape for a long trip. Our progress was very slow, not more than eighteen to twenty miles a day, and at first we had to make a number of detours to avoid bush and brush, but gradually as we got further away from the lake, the country became more open. We had no tent, but just a covering to sleep under. One night we had camped rather late on a dry looking knoll, and after supper soon went to bed, as we made a point of starting early, spelling our poor ponies twice in the day to give them the best show possible.

Charlie-Man will now tell the story: "We had put up the usual willow frame and over this drew our covering and went to sleep, when in the night I was awakened by Ogemases grabbing me fiercely, moaning and shaking his head from side to side. Though I was considered a strong man it took me all my time to hold my own with the little clerk, and I thought he must have gone suddenly mad. In our struggles we smashed our rude camp to pieces, rolled some distance down the knoll, and at last I managed to hold him down firmly with my knee on his chest and asked what was the matter. He was not conscious of my voice, but still kept throwing his head from side to side and moaning. It struck me at last there was something in his ear, and dragging him slightly back to the camp, I found our baggage sack, took out a bottle of Painkiller, pulled the cork with my teeth, turned him on his side, and poured the pure stuff into his ear. He collapsed as if you had hit him with a club, and finally I noticed a small red ant float out with the Painkiller. He remained unconscious until morning when he woke up all right, though for several days he was quite deaf on that side.

So much for Charlie-Man's yarn. And now I take up my narrative again. I was suddenly awakened that night by what I thought was a tremendous blow inside my head, followed by another, and another until I lost consciousness, and then you have heard Charlie-Man's story as to what happened. Talk about grizzly bears or timber wolves, a little tiny red ant is much more to be dreaded when in your ear, and for years afterwards when sleeping out on the prairie I stopped my ears with cotton wool.

Our rations consisted of Pilot bread biscuit, large and very hard, with a small amount of buffalo pemican. Unfortunately, owing to the weakness of our ponies, the trip was taking us much longer than Mr. Cowie allowed for, so we had to limit our fare. Of course, there was plenty of maple sugar and syrup and we rather unwisely ate too much of this which caused dysentery. Finally, by Charlie's rough gait, we should be within some thirty miles of Fort Ellis. But, also, our ponies had played out entirely. Charlie was very much weaker than myself owing to the effects of too much sugar, and we held a council over night as to the best procedure. The question arose, should we kill one of the ponies, and after some discussion we decided against this, they of course being company's property. There were only two large biscuits left, no pemican, and then the sugar, which by this time we were afraid to touch. It was finally decided that I was to start out early next morning taking an easterly course, marking my trail constantly (so that Charlie could be easily found), and three or four hours should bring me to the main cart trail from Ft. Garry to Ft. Ellis.

I was pleased with the prospect and taking half a biscuit for my breakfast away I went, warning Charlie to eat no more sugar, and assuring him I would have assistance back as early as possible. After some three hours steady walking I struck the main trail close to Bird Tail Creek. I was by this time hungry as a bear, and here on the light soil banks of the creek were hundreds of prairie gophers, fat and saucy, the first I had seen. They looked good to eat and after vainly peeling them with stones an idea struck me. Sitting down I took off my moccasins, pulled out the long deer skin thongs and made a snare, and in a few minutes I had a couple of fine big gophers. Making a fire I skinned and cleaned my game, fixed up what Indians call a Ponask, viz.: The game is stretched on a stick with skewers across and roasted before an open fire. I quickly polished one off. Very good and sweet it was, and was just started on the other one when I heard a rig coming from the east, and who should it be but Molyneux St. John and his wife en route to Ft. Ellis on Indian Department business. Nothing would do but my having a good dinner on the spot and then a comfortable drive to The Fort, where I at once reported conditions and saw a relief party with provisions sent back to poor Charlie-Man, who arrived that night, and after a day or two's rest was left to do their own recuperating and would be brought into the horse guard later.

Rumour of Return
Of Hapsburgs

Monarchists Are Not Taken Seriously
By British Authorities.

London.—British official circles expressed the opinion that former Emperor Charles in his attempt to regain the throne of Hungary, was misled by Monarchists who advised him that the time was ripe for his return to Hungary. The advice of Regent Horthy to Charles to leave the country immediately, is regarded here as substantiating the view that there is no support for a Monarchist coup in Hungary at present.

It is believed here that Charles will enter Switzerland by some other neutral country, and not make a further attempt to return to Hungary. If he should try this course, the Allies would do nothing aside from applying moral persuasion against his return to Hungary.

Germany Lodges Complaint

Teutons Protest Sale of Coal Delivered to Allies on Reparations.

Berlin.—Protest against the sale, by allied governments to neutrals, of coal delivered by Germany on the reparations account, is made in the note addressed to the Reparations Commission and the Belgian cabinet, by the German Government. It is asserted that Belgium is disposing of German coal in Holland, and the coal aggregating several thousand tons has been offered for sale abroad at prices below those Germany is able to quote. As a result, the note declares, German interests are being severely injured.

Mannix Sees Pope.

Rome.—Deep concern over the deplorable conditions in Ireland was expressed by Pope Benedict during his interview with Archbishop Mannix, of Melbourne, who came to this city from England, where he was in close touch with the Irish situation. Archbishop Cereiti, Papal under secretary of state, acted as interpreter during the audience, which lasted half an hour.

A Misunderstanding.

Vancouver.—Premier Oliver informed the legislature that there had been a misunderstanding over the appointment to the cabinet of Mrs. Ralph Smith, that Mrs. Smith occupied the position of minister without portfolio and that he himself retained the position of president of the Privy Council.

Influence of the Movies.

Winnipeg.—At the meeting of the intermediate high school principals at the convention of the Manitoba Education Association in Winnipeg, the degenerating influence of motion pictures upon the rising generation, was discussed. Corporal punishment was also discussed.

Recent statistics show more women than men are leaving the farms.

Government Extends Further Relief to Disabled Soldiers

No Further Assistance, However, Will Be Granted to Single Men Without Dependents.

Ottawa.—An order-in-council has just been passed extending the relief granted to disabled men by the Department of Soldiers' Civil Re-establishment until April 23, subject to certain modifications. It is now provided that the men for whom assistance shall be granted, shall be married or single with dependents who have received assistance as such prior to March 31. After March 31, the maximum amounts which may be expended on behalf of any case are:

Man and wife, $60; first child under 16 (girl 17), $12; second child, under 16 (girl 17), $10;

Maximum payable, $85.

No further assistance will be granted to single men without dependents after March 31.

This extension will enable the Department of Soldiers' Civil Re-establishment to deal with the most needy cases during the next three weeks. By that time, it is hoped that a majority of the men who are now receiving assistance will be able to secure employment. It will be noted that no new cases for relief can be taken on under this extension, only those who have been carried prior to the end of March being eligible.

Exchange Zoo Specimens

Rocky Mountain Sheep and Goats Are Sent to Bronx Zoo.

Montreal.—Harold Sibbald, fire and game inspector for Rocky Mountain Park, Banff, is in the city on his way west from New York, where he left four fine Rocky Mountain sheep and two mountain goats for the Bronx Zoo. These were sent by the commissioner for Dominion parks under a system of exchange for other animals, which will be sent for. They are worth $400 each.

Sibbald told how these animals are caught by making a large corral and luring them with salt.

To Equalize Assessments

Assessment Revision Is Authorized Within Province of Alberta.

Edmonton.—In one of the most important reports ever prepared in the province, the commission appointed by the government under authority of the legislature last session to equalize assessments in land values of Alberta, has advised drastic revisions in the realty assessments of the cities, this amounting to many millions of dollars in the cases of Calgary, Edmonton, Lethbridge, Red Deer, Medicine Hat and Wetaskiwin.

Losses on Canadian Bacon

Announce Postponement in Arbitration Over Canadian Bacon Loss.

London.—The arbitration proceedings in connection with the losses on Canadian bacon exported to England under contract with the British food ministry during the closing months of the last year, will not be commenced for some time, it is now stated.

Representatives of the leading Canadian interests concerned have arrived here, but it has not yet been decided whether the arbitration tribunal will sit in London or Liverpool.

The proceedings will be private, it is announced.

Education for Benefit of the Few.

Edmonton.—Decentralization of educational institutions was the dominant note of the presidential address of T. E. A. Stanley, at the Alberta Educational Association convention. At present the university education was for the benefit of pathetically few, he said.

Munitions Discovered.

Cork.—The police have discovered in a dugout near Cork large stores of arms and ammunition, among which were two elephant guns, quantities of bombs, mines, bayonets, pikes, a few rifles and revolvers and also uniforms, and also seditious literature.

Conditions are gradually forcing the farmers into economic serfdom. History proves that when the farmer falls, the Nation falls. The historic example on the one hand is Rome. The decline and fall of the Roman Empire was the decline and fall of her farmers. As long as her farmers were strong so long was Rome mistress of the world, but, the day came when her privileged classes oppressed farmers by unequal enactments and dispoiled them by high rates of interest and by unfair debtor creditor laws; the result was rural decadence both economic and moral, followed by degeneracy in city and country till finally she fell. There were men enough on the Roman farms but they were serfs and slaves the fertilizing stream of strong men from the country to city failed and the city decayed. The decay of the farmer always spells the decline of the Nation.

Farmers! follow the example of Denmark and rise above your serfdom.

KIRRIEMUIR

The Box Social and dance held in the Town Hall on Thursday March 31st proved an entire success.

The Monitor Orchestra supplied the Shimmie Juice, continually and well.

Billie Forbes officiated as Auctioneer on the baskets, and must have thought that he was selling cows and household goods too numerous to mention by the way he conducted the sale. But Sah! whose basket did he buy.

Clarence Blackloy piloted the Jazz hounds as M. C.

Doctor H. W. Weed the district S.S.B. Specialist was on hand and was a brisk bidder when boxes were sold.

Jack Brocklesby and wife returned from a visit to the Old Land on Mondays train.

Bertha Schon returned to Provost on Saturday last to continue School, after the Easter Holidays.

The Altario Dance was attended by the young bloods of Kirrie on Friday April 1st, who were apparently "ravin' to go".

Mrs. H. B. Hennessey left Kirriemuir on Monday Morning's train for points West.

The U. F. A. held a lively session on Saturday April 2nd and were deputized by the Women's Institute about arranging for the fencing of the Cemetery. Full particulars later.

Recommendations for the Prevention of Flies

- (1) All ground which has had manure or refuse or both laying on it during the winter should be dug over to a depth of two feet and quick lime dug in.
- (2) All empty tins or other receptacle which has contained food should be burnt or heated to a red heat before being thrown out.
- (3) All vegetable matter should be burnt and not thrown out.
- (4) All toilets should be covered in such away that flies can not gain access to the contents.
- (5) Ground on which slops are thrown should be sprinkled at least once a week with quick lime.
- (6) All food should be kept under cover.
- (7) Manure and household refuse should on no account be thrown or allowed to remain in either the streets or back lanes.

In fact everything such as dirty paper egg shells etc. which can be burnt should be.

NOTE—Chloride of lime can be used instead of quick lime.
